CB EVENT PLANNER

Hi, my name is Carolina and I'm a wedding and event planner based in Southern California. I have been in the industry since 2016 with a degree in Wedding Planning and Event Design, and certified by the Association of Bridal Consultants. I focus on the design, planning and management of a wedding, assisting you from beginning to end, bringing your ideas to life and working with you to create the event of your dreams. I specialize in luxury and destination weddings, as well as micro weddings, elopements, honeymoon planning and other wedding related events. Hiring a wedding planner is like buying peace of mind, and well worth it to ensure that all details are taken care of. I strive to make sure not only your special day is excellent but also the journey in between with the best resources and planning experience for you.

As a planner, I know each wedding is very different and unique to the couple and will provide the services and vendors fit for your wedding and budget. This allows you to focus on the most essential aspects of your special day, taking the extra stress off your back and saving you time and money. I also inform you of different wedding etiquettes, trends, and how to go about your decision making. My goal is for you to only spend on what you need while designing your wedding, and keep you on track so you can enjoy it to the fullest. I work with an incredible team of vendors who are responsible professionals willing to go above and beyond for each event. We are available to you every step of the way and have monthly meetings to ensure the best communication. Together, we create the best day, and your happiness is why we do what we do. Let's work together to make the best of your events to come!

J. BEATY PHOTO

Hey ya'll, I'm Jaclynn, the woman behind J.Beaty Photo. I am a couples and wedding photographer based in Kansas City, but I absolutely adore traveling outside of the Midwest. I was born & raised in Kansas and married the man of my dreams a little over two years ago. We have the cutest little rescue fur baby named Artie & we are loving our little fixer-upper home.

My goal is to help you feel as comfortable & relaxed as possible during our time together. I truly strive to capture that raw, in-between candid moments & not just the posed ones. I'm all about documenting the authentic smiles & laughs (and even the tears).

When I'm not behind the camera documenting the most AMAZING couples, I'm either at home reading a good book, eating nachos, working at the hospital as an emergency department RN or going horseback riding on a long, outdoor scenic trail.

IVY VINE PHOTOGRAPHY

Hello everyone - my name is Ivy and I have been doing photography since 2011. I was born in UT and haven't lived anywhere else. I have shot many different things, but Weddings and Boudoir are my favorites to do. I have yet to travel for a wedding, but that is always an option for me and would love to travel for your wedding needs. We create unique photos and I will pose and direct you through the whole thing. Including the wedding day - I ensure that you get unique fun photos, plus everything on your check-list. Making personal connections with my clients are key, and I strive to do this with all of my clients. Bridals are probably one of my favorite parts of a wedding. Capturing the dress and all its details, plus making the bride feel beautiful - is always worth the reactions. I am also LGBTQ friendly - so if you are looking for a photographer comfortable with LGBTQ weddings/sessions, I am your gal. I also offer Boudoir which is the perfect gift for your significant other. We incorporate your wedding day things into your session and create a fun, self confidence building session. This preps you for your wedding day, and is a fun little gift for your new partner for life. On your wedding day, you can grab me for anything. I'm not just for your photographer - I am your right hand woman and am happy to help you with anything you need on your special day. Plus - I like to make sure that my sessions are easy going, and a fun experience, so I hope you are prepared to laugh with me. I like to keep the air light, and not stress anyone out. I can't wait to work with you!

TRINITY JESSE FILMS

Hi friend, my name is Trinity. I am a wedding & elopement filmmaker that is based in, but not limited to, northern Utah. Whether you are holding a small ceremony at the top of a mountain or singing at the top of your lungs on the dance floor with a big crowd, I will be there capturing and celebrating your love.

There is one word that intrigues and motivates me as your filmmaker. This simple yet powerful word is perspective. By understanding and implementing this word into your preparation for and on your wedding day, I am able to film your love through yours & your lovers eyes. I do this by sending you a perspectives questionnaire. This questionnaire contains questions directed to the bride & groom individually as well as together. Through receiving this, I am able to see the couple through each others lenses. I then capture those specific details provided when filming. Your wedding film will be something that is personal and tailored to your love for you to treasure for many years to come. This idea leads me to my favorite opportunity that I have as a wedding filmmaker. That unique opportunity is seeing the driven emotion of love in many different forms.

WHAT TO CONSIDER WHEN WANTING A FIRST LOOK SESSION

BY: TRINITY JESSE FILMS

What is a first look session? A first look session allows for the couple to have the unique opportunity to spend an intimate moment together. In this session, the bride reveals her wedding dress to her lover in a private manner that is captured in photo and/or film. This moment allows for the couple to fully embrace each other and their new adventure in life. There are two ways a first look moment can be scheduled, before the wedding day or on the wedding day. This decision is personal to yours and your partner's preference and has thoughts that should be considered before making the final decision.

Are you wanting to schedule your first look session before your wedding date? If so, there are three things that need to be considered. The first, and most important, is your photographer and videographers turn around time. This is a question and conversational topic that needs to happen when discussing first looks. By knowing the turnaround time, you are then able to move forward with finding a fitting date for your first look session. This is important because if you are wanting to display your first look pictures and/or video on your wedding day, you need to allow for enough time in-between the first look and wedding dates to allow for that to happen. For example, if your photographer and videographers turn around time is 4 weeks, you should schedule your first look at least 6 weeks before your wedding date. This allows for not only enough time for your wedding vendors to give you their products, but enough time to get the pictures printed and the video transferred. The second thing to be considered is the flexibility that scheduling your first looks previous to your wedding date allows.

The weather is something that neither the photographer, videographer, or other wedding vendors can control. Unlike your wedding day, if the weather prevents your first look session from occurring, you can easily and quickly reschedule. In turn, if you are having an outdoor wedding and the weather is bad that day, you have your first look pictures and video to reflect on. Of course you will still receive those cherished wedding day photos and films, but you also have beautiful photos of the two of you without drenched hair and runny makeup. The last thought to be considered is location. Scheduling first looks before your wedding day opens the idea of capturing you and your partner with a breathtaking background. If you are unable to have a destination wedding due to various reasons, you still have the opportunity to have a destination first look.

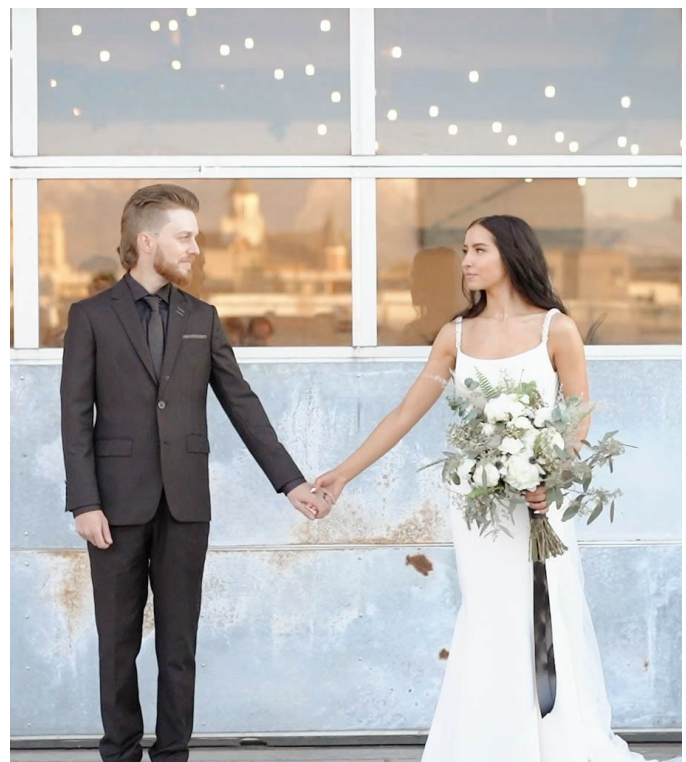

Are you wanting to keep your wedding day special, but would like to still have that intimate moment of a first look? If you answered yes, then there are two things to consider. The first is scheduling enough time before the start of your ceremony. A minimum of 45 minutes would give an acceptable amount of time to share your first look and capture other special moments together before your ceremony. Remember, sharing your first look is a special and intimate moment. The worst thing that could happen is not allowing for enough time to share that moment with each other. Talking with your photographer and videographer is highly recommended as they can direct you in scheduling. A second idea to consider when capturing your first look before your ceremony is the locations that your venue offers. You may be able to choose to do it at your wedding altar. This location choice would make it special for the reason that that will be the spot you and your partner get married and share your first kiss as husband and wife. The other location thought is considering the surrounding landscapes or backgrounds that your venue offers. Whether your venue is in the mountains or on the beach, you should consider the different areas within your venue that best fits your dream.

Are you getting married in a temple, but wanting to share a first look with your significant other on your wedding day? An option to consider so you can have this intimate moment is exiting out of a different door than where your family and friends will be waiting. You will first need to talk with a temple coordinator to see if there is another door in which you are able to exit privately. If so, the groom will walk out first where the photographer or videographer will place him then notify the bride. The two of you are then able to have and share that moment privately. The couple then can walk back inside the temple and walk out the door where they will celebrate with their family and friends.

By scheduling a first look session, you are giving you and your partner the opportunity to share an intimate moment. When choosing the best time to schedule your first look, you want to consider all of the options shared above. Have an open conversation with your partner, photographer, and videographer to find the option that makes your wedding dreams come alive. However and whenever you schedule your first look session, you will cherish that moment for many years to come.

BECCA EVANS PHOTOGRAPHY

I'm a photographer based out of southern Utah. I love my husband, my kids, and Diet Coke. I still say y'all from my Tennessee upbringing. I've done a full Ironman. One time I got run over by a bull. I listen to true crime podcasts to relax. I could eat a donut a day. I have a warm + true to color editing style. I have a knack for remembering names. I absolutely love to shoot elopements + weddings, locally and beyond!

KARISSA LAYNE PHOTOGRAPHY

I'm Karissa, a wedding photographer based in Southern California - I have the absolute best job in the world! I started my business about 5 years ago. Photography had been a hobby of mine, and when I decided maybe I could actually do this for a job, I dove head first into learning all the things and working super hard to achieve this dream. Around this time, I got married to my high school sweetheart, had the most beautiful day ever, and my wedding photos made me emotional! I could feel the love between my husband and I (AND all the people there that mean so much to us) and they made me smile so big, tear up, and just made me feel so blessed. There is so much power in good photography. I wanted to help make people feel the same way about their photos on their most special day. I was also saddened to realize that weddings can be really stressful for some couples, and I had a passion to bring back what was important on this day: marriage. I knew as a photographer who was with the bride and groom literally all day long - in their big moments, small moments, intimate moments, everything - I would have an effect on their day. My main goals are to make my couples feel completely comfortable to be themselves, capturing them just as they are, and helping them be fully present on their wedding day, so they can focus on what matters.

To me, this job goes way beyond just pretty photos. It is deeply personal, special, and important, and such a great honor.

Photography allows me to see the world through a different lens and I'm grateful for the opportunity to tell the story of each couple's love through my photographs and give them something they can hang on to forever.

Hey there! My name is Erika and I am a Utah-based, couples photographer. I have my sister to thank for my love of photography - she's an incredible photographer (@kennabugphoto) and suggested it as a fun side hustle for me as a mom of two. From the moment she suggested I give it a try, I was hooked! I got my first camera, dove into learning everything I could, and discovered my hidden passion. Now, I can't get enough of capturing beautiful moments and memories through the lens. I am currently working hard to master my craft so that I can provide my clients with not only stunning photos, but also an unforgettable experience. Photography has truly changed my life and I am excited to share my passion!

I take pictures of families and individuals, but I especially enjoy capturing the love between couples, whether it be an engagement, wedding, or just for fun! There's something magical about freezing those special moments in time and I find immense fulfillment in being able to do that. I love to capture the energy, chemistry, and unique story that each couple has.

PREPARING FOR THE PERFECT WEDDING PHOTOS: 6 TIPS AND TRICKS

1. Hire a professional photographer: One of the most important things you can do to ensure that your wedding photos turn out well is to hire a professional photographer. A professional photographer will have the experience, skills, and equipment necessary to capture all of the special moments of your big day.
2. Schedule a pre-wedding photo shoot: A pre-wedding photo shoot is a great way to get comfortable in front of the camera and to get to know your photographer. It also helps to discuss with your photographer your preferences and how to pose for the best possible results.
3. Pick the right time and location: The time of day and location of your wedding will have a big impact on the final outcome of your photos. If possible, try to schedule your ceremony and reception for the time of day when the light is most flattering, and choose a location that has plenty of natural beauty. Your photographer can help you with this!
4. Make a list of must-have shots: Before your wedding day, make a list of all the photos that are most important to you. This might include shots of you and your spouse, shots of your family and friends, and shots of all the details of your wedding decor.
5. Give your photographer a heads-up on the details: It's essential to let your photographer know about any special details of your wedding, like a special dress, a unique venue, or a unique family tradition.
6. Relax and enjoy yourself: Remember, the most important thing is to relax and enjoy your wedding day. The more relaxed and happy you are, the more natural and beautiful your photos will be.

Preparing for your wedding photos can seem like a daunting task, especially if you don't love getting your picture taken, but these tips will help ensure that your photos turn out beautifully and that you'll be able to capture all the special moments of your big day in a way you'll treasure for years to come.

Hi! I'm Carly. I am a photographer and videographer based in Northern Utah. I love to travel and I am so grateful for the opportunities I get to travel to different places for my clients. Having been in the wedding industry for 3 years, being married myself, and being both a photographer and videographer, I bring in a unique perspective for my clients. I love to capture the moments and tell a story for my clients to be able to cherish and remember forever. I love what I do!

I have always had a love for photography and videography. As a child, I would always be taking pictures with a phone and using my brothers and friends as my models. I also loved making powerpoints for any occasion: birthdays, anniversaries, end of the year highlights, etc. I would compile pictures and videos for my presentations.

I never thought of myself as an "artist". Growing up, I was never good at drawing, singing and dancing (even though I really wanted to be), or acting. It wasn't until I was in high school that I realized I am an artist, through photos and videos.

I have so much passion for love! Photography and videography are both just such beautiful ways to capture moments and LOVE. It is so beautiful how a story can be told through images and videos. I am so grateful for the opportunities I get to capture these magical moments. I can't wait to capture more!

I'm Staci Brucks, 30 years old, obsessed with shooting weddings and capturing couples in love, with authentic, raw and unposed moments.

I am very ambitious, adventurous, impactful, bold, passionate, easy going, empathetic, helpful, and flexible and I never stop learning and growing in this industry!

It seems like just yesterday I graduated college with my bachelors and masters in exercise science and was working in outpatient cardiac rehab as an Exercise Physiologist. I did that job for almost 5 years, but I was missing something, the feeling of passion, having a purpose and knowing I was fulfilled. I'm the kind of person who likes constant change. Doing the same thing every day just isn't my jam. One random week, I took a huge leap of faith and went out to buy my first professional camera having zero background in photography. I sat on YouTube and told myself that I wouldn't stop until I figured out at least the basics.

I stepped away from my hospital job in november 2019 (right before COVID hit) and dove in full time as a photographer. The scary part was that I knew that I wasn't at a "full time" level but I kept telling myself over and over "I can do this". From that day forward, I have never looked back and have just kept pushing myself everyday. Photography has allowed me to feel so free and live the life that I had always dreamed of living. I am able to travel, meet new people and see the world in a different light. I can't express how much fire and passion I have for photography and I'm so grateful that I am able to live everyday doing something I am completely in love with.
